Prince William County Courthouse enhances security with MDFP

Prince William County, VA, August 11, 2006

Impressed by the Defenshield Mobile Defensive Fighting Position at the Force Protection Equipment Demonstration (FPED) at Quantico Marine Corp Base in Virginia, Prince William County has added a new MDFP to protect its courthouse security personnel. The unit will be used to enhance security during entry control screening. With the unit just weeks in place, security personnel have responded enthusiastically to the added protection and are considering placing more units at all entry control points throughout the building.

"We understand Prince William County worked for several years to secure funding for this project to up-armor their entry points and are pleased they were able to initiate the higher level of protection that their security officers deserve," said Collins White, President of Defenshield. "We're excited to be working with them to develop a plan for greater physical security and deterrence throughout their facilities."

Defenshield produces bullet and blast resistant products that provide physical security protection and deterrence for military, government and law enforcement agencies, as well as private sector infrastructure facilities. The company's lead product – a Mobile Defensive Fighting Position (MDFP) – is currently deployed at entry control points at the Pentagon, on Navy ships, at Marine bases and nuclear facilities, and has been used in combat - saving the lives of US Armed Forces in the battlefield. Additional products include a line of ballistic replacement windows for fixed-position guardhouses and hurricane resistant windows designed for military and civilian applications.

Products are available through the GSA Schedule to all federal agencies and state, local, and municipal law enforcement under the Justice Department 1122 program. Additional funding is available through the DHS Homeland Security Grant Program (HSGP). The GSA Schedule also includes Defenshield's replacement glazing package for the Cadillac/Gage Peacekeeper armored vehicle in use by many law enforcement agencies.

Defenshield Inc. is a veteran-owned, New York corporation manufacturing bullet, blast and fragment resistant products for law enforcement, public security, homeland defense, and the military. The Defenshield product line offers the highest level of security, defeating armor-piercing weaponry, assault and sniper rifles, as well as handgun and shotgun rounds. Uses include hostage negotiations, personnel protection, and the immediate establishment of security checkpoints whenever and wherever a higher level of personal protection is necessary.
